

FOCH WILL POUND GERMANS HARD ALL WINTER

FRENCH TROOPS BEFORE NOYON

City, Key to Whole German Line West of Somme, Is in Jeopardy.

THIRD DRIVE STARTED

Haig's Forces Launch Another Offensive Between Somme and Ancre—Mangin and Humbert's Men Reach Ailette and Divette.

London, Aug. 23.—The German battle line in France is crumbling under the impetus of the attacks of the British and French.

From the region of Soissons around the curve in the front to the neighborhood of Laon, the enemy has been visited with further heavy defeats, while farther north, from the Somme river at Bray to the south of Arras, Field Marshal Haig's men have continued their victorious thrusts.

On no sector of the front have the Germans been able to stay their foes, who have captured a large number of additional towns and vantage points which in the further prosecution of the offensive are of the utmost strategic value. Nowhere is the enemy being permitted to pause for breath.

Thousands of Prisoners Captured. Thousands of prisoners, numerous guns and machine guns and large stores of war supplies have been added to the stocks already in Allied hands. To the British alone in the last two days of fighting have come more than 5,000 prisoners.

The French have reached the Drette river, and have crossed the Oise and Ailette rivers. Driving northward on the heels of the Germans in the angle of the Oise and Ailette rivers, General Mangin's tenth army advanced seven miles.

In a new offensive begun by Haig from the north of the Somme to Albert, an advance of two miles eastward already has been made over the six-mile front. In this fighting the town of Albert on the Ancre, the keystone of the German defense protecting the Germans north of the Somme, has been taken. Here the British made 1,400 Germans prisoner.

London, Aug. 23.—French troops, fighting their way forward on the southern reaches of the Picardy battle front, stand before Noyon. This city is regarded as the key of the whole

GENERAL MANGIN
Leader of French-American attack on enemy.

General Mangin, "hero of the Marne," who was removed in 1917 by the "Defeatist" movement, has been leading the successful French-American attack against the Germans between the Aisne and the Marne.

German line west of the Somme river. During last night General Humbert's men reached the Divette river for a long distance west of its confluence with the Oise. South of Noyon the army commanded by General Mangin holds the south bank of the Oise from Sempiigny to Bretigny, a distance of more than six miles. At Sempiigny they are only a little more than a mile from Noyon.

Ailette River Reached. The line turns to the south at Bretigny and runs to Bourguignon, where it again curves to the east and reaches the Ailette river at La Quincy Bassot. It then extends southward, and it is officially reported that the French now have reached the outskirts of Pompliers, a village on the Aisne less than two miles west of Soissons.

Washington, Aug. 23.—That Foch intends to pound the Boches hard all winter is the belief of the high military experts today. Many prominent officials favor a strenuous winter campaign, thus preventing the Germans from recuperating to resist the mammoth allied spring offensive.

Mangin's Forces 3 Miles From Old Hindenburg Line

(By United Press)
Paris, Aug. 23.—The French advance has swept the Germans back to within three miles of Chauny, the highly important railway highway center between Noyon and Lafer. General Mangin's forces are reported to have reached the Borders of Coney le Chateau, only three miles from the old Hindenburg line. They are pressing eastward into the town from the Ailette river. Noyon is being attacked from three sides. The French are across the Oise and have reached the edge of Morlincourt.

TWO ARE FATALLY HURT

Twenty-Four Persons Are Taken to Hospitals as Result of Tornado Town Is Placed Under Martial Law.

Tyler, Minn., Aug. 23.—The ruins of this tornado-stricken town have been completely searched and the death list revised to 29, with 24 persons in the hospital, two of them probably fatally injured, and more than two score others less seriously hurt.

Adjutant General Rhinow arrived and placed the town under martial law. No one is allowed to enter the destroyed area without a military pass. National guard companies from Pipestone and Worthington are patrolling the streets. More guardsmen will arrive from Mankato under General Rhinow's orders.

The property damage to the storm-swept area three blocks wide and five blocks long will exceed $500,000. Rescue parties and dozens of doctors and nurses poured into the town and relief work has been efficiently organized.

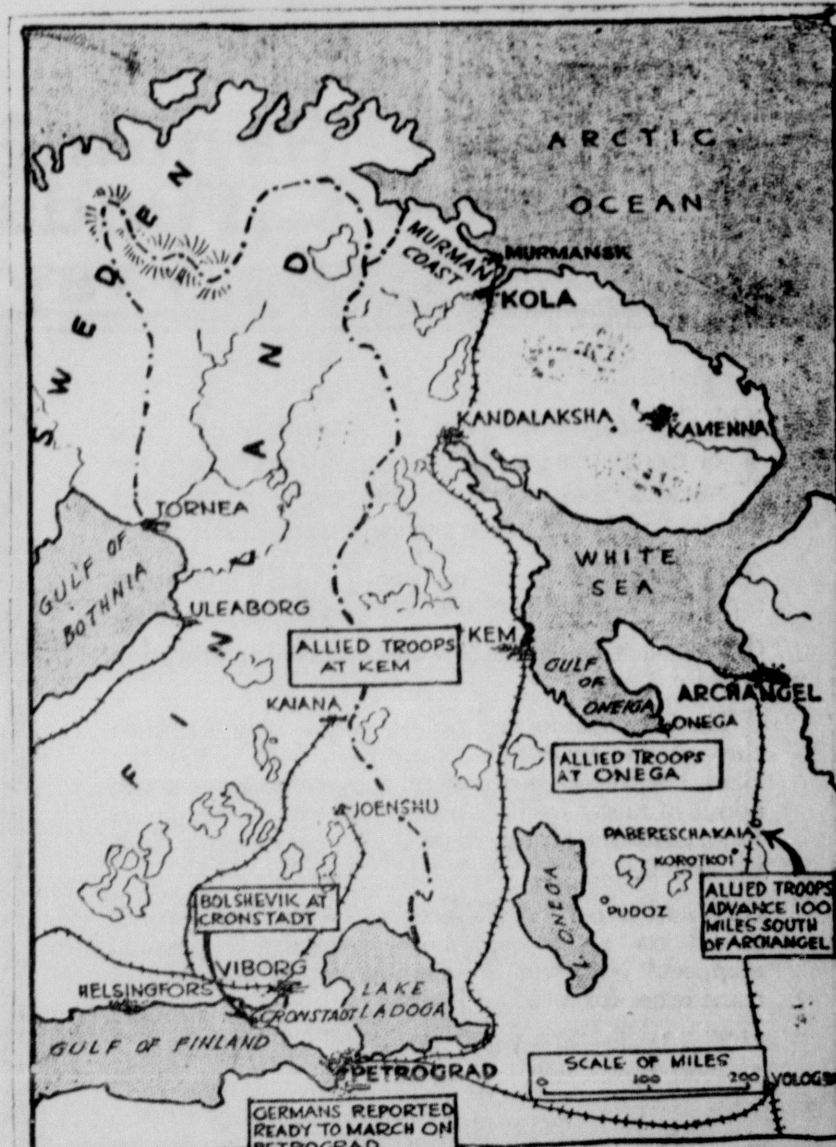

Tyler was the picture of desolation, in darkness and sorrow. Its lighting facilities still were unrepaid and the searchers worked frantically to dig into the ruins for any persons who might have been overlooked.

The motion picture theater, which stood intact like a lone sentinel in the mass of wreckage, has been converted into a morgue. Hundreds of persons passed between the lines of bodies searching for relatives and friends.

The Danish Luther college nearby, unharmed by the storm, is housing the injured. A relief train from Mankato arrived bearing 20 doctors and nurses. Scores of Red Cross women came to the town to offer help, but many left when they found that the relief work was completely organized and every victim cared for. Those who remained are serving in the hospital and helping reorganize damaged homes.

Three Banks Demolished. All three banks in the town were demolished. More than a score of frame business houses were turned into fire wood, and the brick pumping station and electric light plant was razed.

Finland, and Advance of the Allies

Allied forces, invading Finland, or that part of Russia bordering on the White Sea, have gone so far south as Onega and Paberschakia. The Germans are reported to be ready to occupy Petrograd. A decisive battle may be fought before the cold weather. Finland is evidently devoted to the German cause.

Sending Funds Away

IN the dead letter office at Washington a force of clerks is engaged opening letters, which for various reasons, mainly improper or careless addressing, fail to reach their intended destination.

Q Thousands of letters are opened which contain currency, the ownership of which it is impossible to trace.

Q But when bank drafts are found, their restoration is quite easy.

Q There are various ways of safely transmitting funds through the mails, but business houses prefer the Bank Draft. Post-office and express orders do not admit of many endorsements, and the exchange on them costs the sender more than when a bank draft is purchased.

Q Should a bank draft become lost a duplicate is issued on application and payment on original stopped. No bond is necessary, as in the case of some other forms of exchange.

Q The business-like and all-round satisfactory way to send funds away is to purchase a Bank Draft.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All

"MANY NAMES, BUT ONLY ONE PURPOSE"

Duluth Herald Editorially Comments
in Such Heading on Misguided Writer to Paper

ANIMOSITY TOWARDS ENGLAND

Letters, in Spirit, Violate the Espionage Law, None Were Published by the Herald

Brainerd people are interested to know who is the letter writer referred to. The Duluth Herald, under date of August 22, remarks editorially under the caption, "Many Names,
But Only One Purpose," as follows:

There is somebody out near or in Brainerd who intrigues us greatly.
He writes frequently and at length to the Open Court, and the fact that he seldom or never gets his effusions published, which he might if we were less careful, doesn't seem to discourage him in the least.

He uses a different name with every letter, but always the same typewriter with its individualities of typography, as all typewriters have. And always, more or less cleverly camouflaged he has the same theme to play his variations on: hatred of England.
This correspondent of the many names and only one typewriter is now engaged in propagating the now exploded fiction of a national an-tagonism between America and England. He's rather clever at it, too, but not quite clever enough. We don't publish these letters because, in the first place, the fictitious character of the signatures is always so obvious; because, in the second place, England is not an enemy of America
nor America an enemy of England;
because, in the third place, they are,
on the other hand, friends and allies engaged in the same splendid mission, and likely to be friends and allies henceforth through the years;
and because, in the fourth place, these letters, in spirit at least, violate the espionage law and would, if they succeeded in their object with The Herald's co-operation, play the Kaiser's dirty game in America.

That's why, thus far, the communications of this gentleman with the many names and but one typewriter have been declined with thanks; and if the writer will furnish his real name and address we shall be glad to express a large bundle of them back to him—if they are not called for, in the meantime, by the department of justice.

CAR ON FIRE

Officer Bert Scott Saved Overland of Andrew Peterson Last Night,

Officer Bert Scott last night saved
the automobile of Andrew Peterson from explosion and destruction. He noticed the car, an Overland, as it was driven north on Sixth street and made the turn in the alley at Mc-Coll's and Hohman's stores. Flames were bleaching out below.

He stopped the car, put in a fire alarm, used mud on the car and the chemical got there in a rush and extinguished the blaze.

But for Officer Scott's assistance, car and occupants would have been blown skyhigh and the car burned to scrap.

gives to the Allies 400,000 tons of ernments of wood pulp, paper, iron suitable credit.

Brainerd plays Verndale here on Sunday and Hannan, iron man of the locals, will pitch Brainerd to victory.
Hannan's batting eye is picking up too, for in a recent game he got two hits.

The old timers on the hillside have been respectfully requested to get off that perch, pay their quarters like a man and come inside the fence.
They have cost Brainerd hundreds of dollars in the past. They kick about the game and cuss the players when things don't go right and never pay a cent into the treasury.

It is hoped that Mr. Koering (he owns the grounds), will get his hay-making crew busy and cut the grass off the diamond or the Verndale gang may get lost chasing flies in the field.

If you feel like leaving town Sunday, don't do it. Stay here and see the ball game. There are but a few left and Brainerd needs the money to make a showing in the Red Cross league.

WOMAN'S REALM

IRENE O'MALLEY
IS GIVEN MEDAL

Tacoma Girl, Granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Sykora of Brainerd, Receives Decoration

SOLD $103,000 W. S. STAMPS

Tacoma Paper Prints Her Picture and that of Chairman L. H. Burnett of W. S. S. Committee

A Tacoma, Wash., paper gives the picture of Miss Irene O'Malley granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Sykora of Brainerd and records her receiving a gold medal for selling $103,000 in War Savings Stamps.

The young woman is in the insurance business and gave up enough of her time to sell an enormous amount of stamps. In the picture printed, Chairman L. H. Burnett of the W. S. S. committee is pinning on her the gold medal presented by his jewelry firm for sales of more than $50,000 in stamps made by individuals. Miss O'Malley more than doubled the mark.

The newspaper account reads: "For Patriotic Service," is the wording borne by a beautiful made-in-Tacoma gold medal which Chairman Louis H. Burnett of the War Savings Stamps committee pinned upon Miss Irene O'Malley, popular young Tacoma business woman, in reward for her services during the recent W. S. S. drive, in which she personally sold more than $103,000 in the thrift and war savings stamps. A similar badge will be given Miss Rose O'Neil for selling more than $70,000 worth of stamps.

Chairman Burnett at the outset of the last W. S. S. drive in Tacoma announced that the women who sold more than $50,000 worth of stamps would be given gold medals. Miss O'Malley and Miss O'Neil were the two who went over the top. Both are keenly interested in the war work and will assist Mr. Burnett in the wind-up drive which he is planning to start soon to complete and pass Tacoma's quota for the year.

The medal was presented by Burnett Bros. by whom it was designed, and was made by the Tacoma Jewelry company. The center has the letters "W. S. S." in a raised letter monogram, encircled by a band of blue enamel with the inscription "For Patriotic Service," in gold letters. This is made of 14-karat and is surrounded by a wreath of 18-karat green gold. The medal hangs from a solid gold bar with a rosette border, on which is engraved the owner's name.

Caught Cold at Palm Beach

Southern climate is no protection against summer colds. Helen R. Saunders, 626 2nd Ave., W. Palm Beach, Fla., writes: "My severe cold on the chest was relieved by Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." At the Best Monday and Tuesday

"My Own United States," Metro's historical American drama with Mr. Arnold Daly as the star, which will be shown at the Best theatre on Monday and Tuesday of next week, pictures the most interesting pages of our nation's history. It is not a war picture but a romantic drama with historical characters in events of vital import that hark from the present day to the very infancy of this great republic.

The entire picture is played against a chain of historic scenes, including the duel of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, the decisive battle of the famous frigate "Constitution" with the Algerian pirates, Jefferson signing the warrant for Aaron Burr's arrest, the Battle of Vicksburg and others of like significance, each of which is enacted with utmost fidelity.

GRAND FORKS

Liked Madame Zarad, the French Singer Who Comes to This City Next Week

The Grand Forks Herald of August 17th had the following to say of Francesca Zarad, who will be heard here next Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the First Methodist Episcopal church:

"If Francesca Zarad, French prima donna of the Chicago Grand Opera company did nothing but smile, she could help build up that fund for the blinded soldiers of the Allies, but to her infectious smile she adds a most attractive lyric soprano voice. The combination of voice and smile served to charm a good-sized audience at the Methodist church last night, and to bring in well-filled collection plates. Madame Zarad is devoting her summer vacation to a concert tour through the northwest, the entire proceeds of the concerts to go toward a fund for the rehabilitation of blind soldiers of the Allies. No admission is asked but those attending the concert are asked to give what ever they wish toward the fund, and after Madame Zarad's interesting little story of her experiences in France it is easy to give.

The distinguished singer will give a second program this evening at the Methodist church, the first number to be given at 8:15 o'clock.

Madame Zarad sings almost all of her programs in English—an English that has a quaint French turn to it, and her interpretations are charming. Her voice is light and of wide range, and she puts a wealth of expression into everything she sings. On her program last night there was one group of French songs, which she sang in that language, and which included "Le Nil," a most effective number by Le Roux, and the familiar "Habanera" from Carmen. To this group, she gave as an encore "The Kiss," Arditi's well known waltz song which proved one of the most attractive songs of the program. Others which were given much appreciation were "The Open Secret," by Woodman; "Down in the Forest," Ronald; and "The Fairy Pipers," by Brewer. Madame Zarad closed her program with "The Marcellaise" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Miss Jessie Wolfe, an unusually gifted pianist, played Madame Zarad's accompaniments and contributed two groups of solos. Miss Wolfe is a pianist of distinction and her accompaniments were genuinely artistic."

ODD THOUGHTS OF CHILDREN

There is a Mental Region Into Which the "Grownups" Have No Right to Enter.

This is a region into which the "grownup" has no right of entry and no key to turn the lock, says London Spectator. Only now and then a flash may disclose the inner recesses and throw a sudden light on an entirely surprising line of thought. A child frequently cherishes a theory of its own, which appears quite reasonable, for the enchanted precincts within, where the supernatural obtains as readily an acceptance as the commonplace. A little thoughtful boy of my acquaintance was asked the usual question, what he was going to be. He answered with great decision: "Oh! a land agent of course, like daddy." And I think "daddy" and the land agency profession scored a compliment.

Time does not exist for children, who worry over no human limitations. A little girl saying her hymn, "There is a green hill far away," was thrilled to hear that her mother knew the lady who wrote it. Then she repeated her psalm, and added gravely: "And did you know David, too?" The train of thought is rather charming which led a little boy, when told not to mention a guest's amputated foot, to say: "No, and when I get to heaven I won't say anything to John the Baptist about his head." Surely politeness could go no further. Often an entirely different mental image is conjured up in the child's mind from that suggested by the grownup story teller. One mother, recounting at great length the details of the illness of a little dog to her small girl, several times mentioned "the dog doctor." She was surprised, at the very end, by the question: "What sort of dog was the dog doctor?"

INSECTS TENACIOUS OF LIFE

Are Able to Survive Injuries Which Would Cause Death in Higher Forms of Animal Life.

The unusual success of insects in the struggle for existence has been a subject of much discussion in scientific circles. Just why it is that these little creatures have survived the ravages of birds and other enemies, as well as the ingenious contrivances of man for their destruction, and form today the most numerous class of animals on the face of the earth, leaves a wide field for argument and conjecture.

Two important reasons for this have been pointed out by naturalists, i. e., their proclivity and their extraordinary adaptation to environment. Another just as potent reason, which has received less attention, is their amazing tenacity to life, many species being able to survive injuries which would cause almost instantaneous death in the higher forms of animal life.

Starting Up Again.

Mr. and Mrs. Honeybun had fallen out rather badly the night before, and at breakfast next morning there was a decided coolness between them.

"I would like you to bring some more face cream on your way home, Henry," said Mrs. Honeybun. "You women are always spending money to make yourselves better looking," growled Mr. Honeybun.

"True, my dear," replied Mrs. Honeybun, sweetly. "Now, you hardly ever see a man doing that."

"No, because ninety-nine men out of a hundred realize that the quest of beauty is hopeless."

Their Appetites Were Poor.

It was the boast of a certain famous gourmand about New York that he counted a full-sized tenderloin steak surrounded by a half-dozen lamb chops merely as the foundation of a fair meal. Another celebrated bon vivant and host, taking his preprandial cocktails, invited his guest of honor to mention his preference in the way of an appetizer. The guest, a food worshiper and running true to form, allowed as how three dozen cherry-stone clams might start him off right. And the hideous part of it is none of the party regarded the order as in any way unusual.—Exchange.

Optimism.

Optimism is friends with the world, putting white arms of affection about the earth and men. It's good will, encircling the world, returns to it again. Optimism knows that the very needs of love are fairer in blossom than the brightest orchids of hate.

Optimism is the gospel of light, and if that light shines for you, you will find your life's dream tiding through happy fields beneath rainbow arching skies until its low sweet murmur is swallowed in a mighty river of song.

Optimism ends the world-old struggle for happiness by being happy.—Exchange.

No Hurry.

The telephone bell rang with anxious persistence. The doctor answered the call.

"Yes?" he said. "Oh, doctor," said a worried voice, "something seems to have happened to my wife. Her mouth seems set, and she can't say a word."

"Why, she may have lockjaw," said the medical man.

"Do you think so? Well, if you are up this way some time next week I wish you would step in and see what you can do for her."—Harper's Magazine.

TROOP TRAIN STONED

Attacked As It Pulls Out of Chicago Station.

Federal Operatives Seeking Plotters With Orders to Shoot On Sight.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—As the cars pulled out of the Polk street station, Chicago troop trains, bearing soldiers to cantonments, were heavily stoned. Several soldiers were injured, windows smashed and boards in the sides of the cars split.

As a result, a score or more federal operatives were ordered out to seek the plotters and told to shoot them on sight.

It was stated at the department of justice that the search would not end until the plotters either had been shot or were in custody. The attack on the train is the third effort to injure troops in Chicago en route to various cantonments.

Authorities believe the attacks are the work of a band of pro-Germans who so far have eluded the efforts of the department of justice to capture them.

The attack came just as the train was pulling out. The soldiers did not realize it was an attack on them and were singing and joking one another about their "bit" in the war.

Several were struck before it was realized they were being stoned. They were given first aid by their companions and Y. M. C. A. workers aboard.

Railway Administration Begins Nationwide Cleanup.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—H. A. Koach of the railroad administration took the first step here in what he said is a nationwide cleanup of railway ticket scalpers. David Lyons and H. W. Young, Chicago men alleged to have made $25,000 a year each out of the business, were arraigned before a federal commissioner and bound over for trial. In a statement made by Lyons he charged one speculator with manipulating the tickets in such a manner that one passbook was used 16 times before detection.

Visiting Uruguay Envoy Honored.
Washington, Aug. 23.—Extraordinary honors were paid Dr. Baltasar Brum foreign minister of Uruguay, on special mission to the United States, on his arrival in Washington as guest of the nation. PLEASANT WAY ALWAYS BEST Nothing Ever Lost by Effort to Take Sting Out of Request That Must Be Refused.

"Do you know how to take the sting out of anything unpleasant you have to do? It is a good plan to learn how to do this.

"She said she couldn't do it, but you know how Effie would say such a thing. She tries so hard to make everybody feel pleasant. Now, when I say no, people understand that I mean no."

Marcia looked as well pleased with herself as if she had announced a more amiable characteristic. She was a girl with a peculiarly blunt and uncomplaining manner. If she refused a request, her refusal was as downright as a blow. It was never softened by any little phrase suggesting regret. And Marcia was so well satisfied with herself that she felt something like contempt for the way Effie took the sting out of saying no, and made the people to whom she refused a favor as grateful as if she had granted it.

The girl who starts to go through life with her elbows out is going to find the road hard to travel. If she prides herself on being blunt and outspoken, she may need to use that as consolation for her sore heart many a time. It pays to make even a refusal pleasant. It pays to take out the sting whenever possible, and drop in the honey. One who starts out as Marcia did, priding herself on being blunt, and contemptuous of the little courtesies, is likely to come to old age friendless and embittered. Learn to be pleasant and take out the sting.—Exchange.

FOUND THE PRISONER GUILTY

But Jury's Verdict Had Nothing to Do With Charge on Which Defendant Was Tried.

A barrister with a long experience of queer juries in the mining regions of Pennsylvania tells the following amusing story as illustrating their eccentricities:

A man was charged with committing a murderous assault upon another as a result of some political differences.

The assault having been committed at night, there appeared to be some difficulty in identifying the assailant, and, as a matter of fact, the counsel for the defense made out an excellent case for the prisoner, calling witnesses to testify that he was nowhere near the spot where the assault took place on the night in question.

Everybody concerned fully expected that the jury would bring in a verdict of acquittal, yet, to the general astonishment, the foreman announced that the prisoner had been found guilty.

"But," he added, observing the general consternation created by his statement, "not guilty of this assault, yer honor. This is the spalpeen who stole Biddy McCarthy's pig last year, and we found him guilty of that!"

Meaning of "America."

What does the word "America" mean? Few know. It is derived from the word Annabrie, a proper name which represented the old Germanic ideal of heroism and leadership. Then the Norman French softened it to Amayrie. Then in Italy they changed it to Amerigo. But the juxtaposition of the "i" and the "e" bothered the Italians, and it became Amerigo, and finally with one "r." Thus it became the name of Amerigo Vesputci, a Florentine merchant and explorer. And it is in honor of his voyages of exploration to the new world that a German geographer, Martin Waldseemüller by name, gave the name America to the continent.—Ladies' Home Journal.

DEAD ORDINANCES

Every town, and Brainerd is no exception, has its lot of dead city ordinances cobwebbed and almost forgotten.

So often one reads that ordinance so-and-so has been revived and the council has requested the police to enforce it.

One of the most intense tributes to public opinion was paid by Dr. F. C. Rodda of the state university hospital who spoke at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday evening on a proposed milk ordinance.

In his opinion, the more practical way to improve the quality of milk in any community is by a campaign of education rather than by useless ordinances which are seldom put into actual effect.

He recommended that a survey of the local situation be made by a competent expert, dairies furnishing milk to this city visited and inspected and the results of this survey reported to the committee.

And where can a campaign of education be more appropriately carried out than through the medium of the press.

The man or woman who can truthfully say he reads no paper these days is so unutterably dead that he is not worth saving.

PUBLICITY AIDS

Attendance at the surgical dressings class of the Red Cross had slackened because picking oakum is no easy job.

"Let's publish the names of those who attend the classes," suggested one of the workers.

It is being done regularly by the Brainerd Dispatch and the attendance increased from the start. People have gone up to the rooms in the Koop block who had never before viewed Red Cross work.

There is room for more workers, mornings, afternoons, evenings. A big quota of oakum pads must be turned out. You and I and all of us can help. Go to the rooms in the Koop block and do your share.

The Brainerd Dispatch Thursday evening published the names of close to a hundred workers, some being brand new volunteers.

OPPORTUNITY IS HERE

How many times have we heard some middle-aged man lecturing and delivering a stirring appeal and asserting:

"Ha, if only I had the chance, I would enlist and chase the Germans into the sea."

That time has arrived, my friend. If you're between 46 and 56, Corporal Wm. Slowe of the local recruiting office, will take you for any of the three departments of the staff corps of the ordnance, signal and quartermaster's department.

W. W. HARTLEY'S RETROSPECTION

Brainerd Business Section Described as It Existed in the Pioneer Days

JACK PINES ON THE TOWNSITE

Board Shanties Succeeded Tents, Headquarters Hotel Stood at Sixth and the Track

Leon E. Lum asked W. W. Hartley to describe Brainerd's business section as it existed in pioneer days and he gave the following resume:

Among the first buildings following the tents along the river bank mentioned in my notes, Fletcher, Bly & Co. built a large store and warehouse on the north side of the railroad track near the bridge. Later Fletcher withdrew from the concern and Eber H. Bly built a large double store on the corner of 6th and Front, with a hall above, called Bly's hall, and a warehouse in the rear, fronting on 6th street, with living rooms above, where he and Mrs. Bly lived. This was then thought away out of town in the timber.

The townsite was then covered with a very thick growth of jack pine trees, very tall and slim, and when the streets were cleared they resembled avenues in a large city with high buildings on each side, especially in the night time.

Then Hallett Bros. built a store near Fletcher-Bly Co., which they occupied for years afterwards. Trudell Bros. built a pop factory and restaurant and sold soft drinks near First and Front adjoining or near Morton & Seelye's.

Then as L. P. White got to selling lots the board shanties began going up on Front street and 3rd, 4th and 5th and gradually spread to Laurel street. The Headquarters hotel, corner of the railroad track and 6th St., and the Northern Pacific general office building on the opposite corner soon followed. The latter was also the depot.

The freight sheds were built at the corner of the railroad and Broadway, between Main and the track.

Russell built a cottage on Laurel street, on the corner of the alley, between 5th and 6th and a small board shanty in the rear fronting on the alley for his print shop and Tribune office.

The Northwestern hotel occupied the corner of 3rd and Front, then came Fairbanks saloon, from Crow Wing, Ed Lynde's general store, and Ed Morse, (Shady's) saloon on the corner of 4th. The pine tree the Indians were hung on stood in front of his saloon. H. A. Mills & Co. were on the opposite corner of 4th, then came Milt Askew's saloon and billiard parlors, then came the Pine restaurant, Wm. Falconer, proprietor, who was later elected county commissioner and whose sister married John McLean, of McLean and McNider, heavy operators in Bismarck. McNider was with Hills & Co. some time before going to Bismarck with McLean and going into business for himself.

Next on Front street came D. McNanny's hotel and Hanauer & Neumann, clothing, afterward sold to Penke & Wakefield, where I first made headquarters. Further down the block was Frank Dunn's dance hall and saloon and on the corner S. V. R. S. wood built the first drug store, corner 5th and Front. On the opposite corner E. H. Davis built a hardware store and held the adjoining lot vacant to protect his store from fire. On the next lot B. F. Hartley and I built the store building that still stands when I left Brainerd, afterward occupied for years by E. L. Strauss, jeweler.

All the buildings in town up to this time were built after the same sort of architecture with the customary shanty—town high board front to give the appearance of a square block on the street. We decided to build something different. I expect this building is there yet to show for itself.

Tom Cantwell built on railroad ground on the northeast corner of 4th and Front, opposite Hills' store and Morton & Seelye left their place near 1st and Front and built adjoining Cantwell. Warren Leland built the Leland hotel, corner 5th and Laurel. The Scotte House went up on the opposite corner and Romer's saloon on the northeast corner and Jim Dewar's No. 1 saloon on the northwest corner. Lanahan, Cantwell's Mayor adjointed the Scotte house on 5th and the jail was built below the Leland hotel on the opposite side of 5th and the Catholic church came next. McMahon's saloon was on 5th, corner of the alley, rear of Sherwood's drug store. It was in this alley that Griffin, of Griffin Bros., of Sauk Rapids, was garroted and robbed. One of his brothers and family now reside in Mountain View, Cal.

GERMAN RAIDER EVADES CAPTURE

Naval Officials Think Submarine Crew Has Destroyed the Triumph.

COMB SEAS IN VAIN

American Warships Unable to Find Any Trace of Ship Used by the Teutons to Prey on Fishing Fleets.

Washington, Aug. 23.—As no further reports have been received of activity on the part of the German sea raider Triumph, the converted steam trawler armed by 16 members of a U-boat crew, the belief is strengthened in naval circles that the craft is no longer on the north Atlantic fishing grounds.

So thorough have been the "steps taken to safeguard the fishing fleets," as described by Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations, that officials here are positive the Triumph could not have escaped the net spread for her capture. The only possible explanation of the failure of patrol craft to capture the raider will be that she has been sunk by her crew, possibly after the men have returned to the submarine.

Submarine and Trawler Co-operate.

A Canadian Atlantic Port, Aug. 23.—A German submarine, presumably the craft which captured the Triumph, is operating with the raiding trawler, said Capt. Jeff Thomas of the Sylvania, who arrived here in a power dory after his schooner was sunk by the raider. As he and his men rowed away from their craft which the Germans bombed, they saw two miles distant a large submarine lying on the surface.

Destruction of another large fishing schooner was reported with the arrival at Gabarus, Cape Breton, of 16 of the crew of the Dela Garde. They said their vessel was sunk on the fishing banks by a submarine. One of the men is injured. A dory with three of the crew is missing.

The American schooner Sylvania was sunk by the trawler. The Sylvania's crew reached a fishing port near here.

The trawler also sank the Nova Scotia fishing schooner Pasadena. The crew, which reached ports, reported that their vessel was sent to the bottom at midnight Tuesday.

Entire Fishing Fleet Lost.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Virtually the entire fleet of the Maritime Fish corporation has been destroyed by the trawler Triumph who was captured by a German submarine crew and armed, according to reports to the corporation's office here. The fleet was operating off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. It was composed of boats of both Canadian and American registry.

The exact number of vessels destroyed is not known here but the corporation's fleet generally consists of eight or nine vessels.

west corner of 4th and Laurel, where he resided till he left Brainerd. Ed French's saloon was on Laurel, near 6th and a meat market opened on the southwest corner of Laurel, near 6th and Mahlum built a store and lodge rooms above on the southeast corner 5th and Laurel. Mrs. Chapman of Crow Wing, built the Merchants hotel on the northwest corner, with stables on Laurel and the alley, across from Russell's Tribune office.

J. C. Walters built the first exclusively wholesale liquor store next to the Merchants hotel, on 6th street. I afterward bought this building and moved the Tribune office there.

Playgrounds for Children Are Big Necessity to Conserve Health

By CHARLES E. HUGHES, Former Governor of New York State

The successful worker must have the spirit of play in his heart, and the successful man is only a boy with a man's experience. He must have the zest, the devotion, the spirit of comradeship, the capacity for self-forgetfulness, the boy's wholesome outlook upon life, if he is to do a man's work in the world. How are we to save civilization from being caught in its own toils? How are we to preserve childhood from being too early drawn into the contests of life? How are we in our great urban population to make possible the spirit of play, the opportunities for childish sports which are essential to the development of normal manhood and womanhood? To the solution of that problem you are devoting your study with no little measure of success already attained. I cannot aid you by experience or suggestion, but I bid you godspeed from the bottom of my heart.

We want play—simply play, for the children of our great cities. Those who are fortunate enough to live in the country have in their own homes the playground. The orchard, the meadow, the brook, the swimming pool, the near-by wood, constitute the never-failing source for gratifying the appetites, the normal appetites, of childhood in the country. And with what feeling akin to despair do we look upon the growing thousands teeming in the congested quarters of our cities, with the slight opportunities of the roadway to take the place of the open country!

We do not think of them in their early years alone, but we look forward to the time when they come to play the parts of men and women in the world, and we wonder what is to be the future. Is their experience of life merely to be that of the hard taskmaster, the struggle for bare existence? Is the growing feeling of discontent to be accentuated and increased because of abnormal deprivation?

We want playgrounds for children in order that we may conserve the health of our people. A great deal is being done in these days to protect us against the spread of disease. We are fighting with intelligence and with new-found zeal the great white plague, but the dread disease of tuberculosis must be successfully fought by developing stamina, physical strength, through exercise in all the physical activities. We must nourish that strength in childhood. We do not want simply hospitals and pavilions and notices giving instructions to those who are unfamiliar with necessary precaution. We want to save the health of our children, so that we may nurture a strong, well-favored community. That is the surest way to stamp out disease.

PARIS WAR GARDENS NEW IDEA Tables Turned on the Germans and Yanks Have Them Headed in the Right Direction

Corporal William H. Evans has written an interesting letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Evans, of 1715 Norwood street, describing Paris and its environs. His communication follows:

Paris, France.

My dear folks—
I received your letter of July 1st, today, with a few other letters. The weather has been relatively nice, certainly nothing to kick on. It is never sultry hot, and it sure is darn lucky that it is not, as we are required to wear heavy O. D., and not khaki, such as we had down in Texas, and I also am wearing my heavy underwear as I have not as yet received the package you sent in June, but I presume it will probably show up in time.

For the last few nights I have been helping at one of the Red Cross hospitals here. My two pals and I volunteered for two nights, and worked from 1 A. M. to six A. M., besides working in the office the rest of the day, so you can imagine that we were not very perk. I was assisting in the X-ray room, where one saw the wounds all exposed before him. I certainly isn't very pleasant, I'll tell the world, but God, those boys sure are cheerful even in their maimed condition, and their first thought is to get back to the line again and revenge their wounds. They all think the same of the German, namely, a bloody, treacherous liar, who is only safe if he has a bayonet stuck in him. We certainly turned the tables on him though, and believe that from now on, he will show us his back and not his head. At last, we have him running the right direction.

At the hospital, the operating rooms, and other departments work all the time, namely night and day. The wounded generally are brought here from the front aid station by train, and thence to the different hospitals here by ambulances. After the necessary dressing or operations are done, they are generally sent to the different hospitals in the south for recuperation. One can't bestow enough praise on the Red Cross nurses, for they sure do have nerve. Paris, as you probably have read, is the zone of the army, but no difference is felt, that is, in regard to the general humdrum of the city.

Talking about war gardens, Paris is a rather strange place, as before it was surrounded by a wall, and a big moat or ditch, that in olden times was filled with water, but now, of course it is dry, but the ground is very fertile. The city divided this ground into little lots, which they distributed among the poorer class of people. The lots, I should say, are probably fifty or seventy-five feet by 100. It certainly helps them to a great deal, and besides, it looks very pretty, at least to its former condition, as before it was overrun with weeds. If one goes there early in the morning, say five o'clock (which of course, I never do), you would see these men all being generally very old, or the other extreme, very young, busily engaged tending to their gardens before going to work in the morning.

Last Sunday, my godmother, and my sisters (adopted) took us out to a famous French forest, about 25 kilometers from here. For a wonder it didn't have some chateau on it, or the tomb of some great king, but it didn't need any of that, as its natural beauty was enough to satisfy anybody's taste. Some great man's tomb or palace, you can see in Paris or its vicinity, but the beautiful natural woods, with its natural trails, is something out of the ordinary in France. I will say that for France, when they have something that is rich in natural scenery, they just leave it untouched, and not mar its beauty by pitting man's sense of beauty against that of nature's. We had lunch in the wood, after which went to a sporting club nearby, and engaged in a game of tennis. We arrived home in time to partake of a fine dinner with them, and the only sad thought at the table was next day dum for us. Did I tell you, in the forest pines played an important part in making it beautiful for me.

At the beginning of the present German offensive, which is in reality ours, that night I happened to be on a high knoll of ground overlooking the field. It certainly made some terrible noise, but the allies beat them, thus putting up a curtain of fire, thus playing havoc in the German lines, which thus reduced the force of the German blow. Even in Paris, they say that you could hear the rumble of the guns, and even in the north-east, a faint glow was upon the sky. In the still afternoons, you can sometimes hear the rumble of the guns from the front.

My godparents here have written you a letter. That is a rather surprising bit of news, and also, it may be a good souvenir. They showed me, of it to me, to pass upon it, and criticize it if I didn't like it. I didn't criticize it, because they had mushroom sauce and rabbit for dinner, and I would appreciate four or five helpings which I usually get anyway. I will tell you about the general construction of the letter. In the first half of the letter it is devoted to what you have had the papers drum into your heads, namely, they appreciate America's participation in the war, and their unselfish principles for which they are the small nations, and the destruction of an unscrupulous nation's war. They speak of poor devastated Belgium and Serbia, and the tremendous sacrifices that France has made. The second part of the letter is devoted to the reason why they take the liberty in writing. They say that if they had a son in America, who was over here for the noble purpose that we are here, they would feel very glad to hear that someone is taking an interest in him, provides him with a home where he can come and be surrounded by home comforts, and looks after him as a mother would. The third part of the letter she wouldn't let me see. She says it is purely personal, the contents of which would have to remain in doubt to me. She threatened to tell so many of my little shortcomings that I don't know what to think. She left it on the mantle, and I went over to have a little look, but all I found was an empty envelope, and also got the laugh out of my three sisters. The letter will, or is written in French, so if possible get someone to translate it for you. Write back a nice long letter of appreciation to them, in French if possible, for they surely have treated us like their own kids, and makes Paris seem like a heaven for us. If a button is off they sew it on and meals are a rod-sand to us.

Hoping you get the letter O. K., and answer it immediately, as they will be waiting impatiently for a reply, I remain,

Your loving son,

BILLY.

"BLACKIE" CLARK IN LETTERS FROM FRONT

Allied Anti-Air Craft Guns Make the Boche Planes Keep Their Distance from Lines

In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clark, Lawrence or "Blackie" as he is known, tells of experiences. Under date of July 28 he writes from somewhere in France that he took a pair of glasses (field glasses) and took a look across No Man's Land the other day.

"We could see the Boche trenches, barb wire entanglements, dugouts, etc. But I didn't see any Boche. Things are quiet here. A lot of enemy airplanes are seen, but we never have any trouble with them. The anti-air craft guns always drive them away.

We are near a city, but I have postponed my trip today on account of the rain. I suppose you are following the big drive the American Ex. boys are making and that sure looks good.

The Red Cross gave us some gum, candy, cigarettes, tobacco the other day, so you see they haven't forgotten the boys over here. The company has a mascot, a little French boy, who followed us one day to camp. Now he doesn't want to leave. He is learning English fast and the fellows figure on taking him back to the states."

In a letter to Fred C. Cook, recently, "Blackie" acknowledged receipt of the Central Minnesota Red Cross League regulations.

"If the huns had any idea that the roughneck gang from the South Side was slowly but surely getting into service, they would surely be surprised by the time you get this. Ankey, Happy and John Stillwell and the whole bunch will be soldiers. I guess Ed my brother is over here by this time. He had left Camp Pike when I heard from him last.

When the Yanks get started with a good shoulder to the wheel, it won't be a stop anywhere, but a clean march to Berlin.

Our soldier baseball season is closed I guess for this year. It was seven games played, one lost and one tied. I hit about 550, but I dropped one in the outfield on a hard try. We can't play baseball here near the front with a tin hat and a gas mask.

We have made about four moves since I wrote to you last. Most of these moves were with full pack and on foot. We were on a hill at one place that was so steep the houses only had windows on one side. It was about five kilometers to the top of this hill and we could have made better time if we had crawled up on a ladder. We are on what they call a quiet sector of the front, but we can't be fooled. Had a few shells whistle over the other day. It sure is a relief when you know they have passed. But it's all in a life time. We are far away from wine, women and song, so there is nothing to bother us.

But we might get time yet to run over and play a little game of ball with Fritz yet. I got it all mapped out what I'm going to do when this war is over. I and another fellow are going up in northern Minnesota and take out a homestead. We will be used to the wild life.

We sure map out some awful things among ourselves. Every fellow has a different way to win the war. Just no wa big report came in on the war, but all in one voice said, "Some."

I almost got fired out of the bunk house just now. I started this letter in daylight, but we talked so much it got dark. So I lit a candle light and it had such a nice smell the boys objected. I am now using a candle. (They won.)

Fred, really we have more fun here than I could have in the States. To be around camp you would never know there was even a war. We don't need any money. The government now even gives us our Bull Durham. I also have some of that left I brought from the States. I can't get any tobacco for a pipe now, but I don't need it as I left my pipe near a blast we set off and it is finished. I did see a few small pieces of it afterwards.

We were awakened about 12 one night with the order to wear our gas masks at alert (or ready to put on), but we didn't need them. The gas was nix.

The French is still coming hard, but I manage to learn some.

Well Fred, I don't know what a pool table looks like. Some of the boys said you should have scratched candy and soft drinks off your letter as it made them think of old times. Best luck to the C. M. R. C. B. E. L. Would be glad to have all the clippings of the games. That looks like a Speedwell team. I got a paper from home."

MADE MAD RUSH FOR THE HUNS

Officers Could Not Stop American Advance, Field Artillery Hurlled Destruction

Following are excerpts from a letter written by Jack Kelly, a former employee of the Northwestern Telephone Exchange at Brainerd and later in the 48th telegraph battalion of the signal corps of which Andrew Gletiet was captain. Mr. Kelly is a cousin of Mrs. Martin Nelson of Brainerd. He writes:

"If you could see the trains of Sammies going through day and night on their way to the front singing at the top of their voices, if you could see the thousands that are landing on the shores of this poor bleeding France—see some of the poor wounded Sammies on our great Red Cross trains that I sometimes get a chance to talk to and hear them beg to be taken off the train, swearing that they are not hurt badly and pleading to go back and get 'just one more crack at the dirty enemy.'"

"If you could only hear the story of what one of our divisions did when on the third day of the present drive they found many of our marines pinned to trees with German bayonets through their throats. I cannot tell you the great things our boys did that day, but after they saw what the Germans had done with the marines their officers could not hold them, or the Germans could not stop them, and at 10 o'clock that night this division had advanced over eight kilometers, which is better than five miles.

"I could tell you how our field artillery worked so fast and threw so many shells more than the French that the French gunners actually cried and pulled their guns up ahead of the Americans, just as much as to say, 'You might work our own guns (French 75's) faster than we can, but you are not a bit braver.'"

Kelly may be seen in a large group photograph at Murphy's clothing store.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORIES OF TODAY

Mose DeRoche has a hard luck story. It appears that some time ago while his wife was away, J. D. Walston delivered a white sack at his place. Some person spotted it and set Mose down as receiving a whole sack of wheat flour, contrary to the food rules and it was so reported. Mose was up on the carpet and then it leaked out that Mose had received a sack of Swift fertilizer for his lawn. Mose said he wished the man, who informed on him, would be compelled to eat bread made out of the stuff that was in the sack.

FINE GARDEN

John Cochran Has Had Remarkable
Success in Culture of Beets, Radishes, Onions, Etc.

John Cochran has one of the finest gardens in the city and has had remarkable success with his beets and radishes. Even at this late day when the radishes are about over except the winter variety, he has produced a toothsome, succulent variety which causes your mouth to water as you sample it.

Mr. Cochran's carrots, onions and greens are famous. Sweet corn thrived. His potatoes are of two varieties, the Burbanks and the Early Ohio. Both had a tremendous yield due to the intensive cultivation which he gave them. There isn't the least suspicion of a weed in that garden and it would delight any one to view it.

The reporter can afford to get enthusiastic about that garden, for Mr. Cochran let him sample some of his radishes and beets and they certainly were the best ever tasted and would win a prize at the state fair any day.

Taking Stock of the Future

AMERICA HAS THE ADVANTAGE OF AN INEXHAUSTIBLE SUPPLY OF RAW MATERIAL WHICH WILL BE OF THE UTMOST VALUE AFTER THE WAR

By FRANCIS H. Sisson,
Vice President Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

In the chaos of war there is both evil and good. At first sight the evil of war is so manifest that talk of benefits seems sheer irony. In money the war has already cost at least a hundred billions. Millions of lives have been lost or rendered economically useless. Entire countries have been laid waste. The paraphernalia of business has been scrapped. Normal trade routes have been abandoned, and new ones, to meet temporary needs, have been established.

Nevertheless, there are certain advantages in which are seeds of restoration and even greater future prosperity. The war has driven individuals and nations to a marvelous development of their personal and collective resources never before known. Luxury and ease-loving peoples have become frugal and industrious. Universal thrift has become a necessity. Neutral countries, no longer able to import necessities, are developing their own fields and mines. They are increasing their manufactures and developing their foreign trade. We are entering upon an age of enterprise and preparation, not unlike that of the Renaissance, at the close of the Middle Ages.

The first peace task will be the demobilization of the vast war machines and the rearrangement of society on a peace basis which the war, whatever its outcome, will have unavoidably made different from the old pre-war standard.

How great is this problem of readjustment is illustrated by the estimate that 35,000,000 men are under arms or directly connected with military and naval service. How many more, including women, are engaged exclusively in war work it is impossible to estimate. Then there are the millions whose energies are directed towards supplying goods and services needed only because so many men and women have been withdrawn from production and distribution.

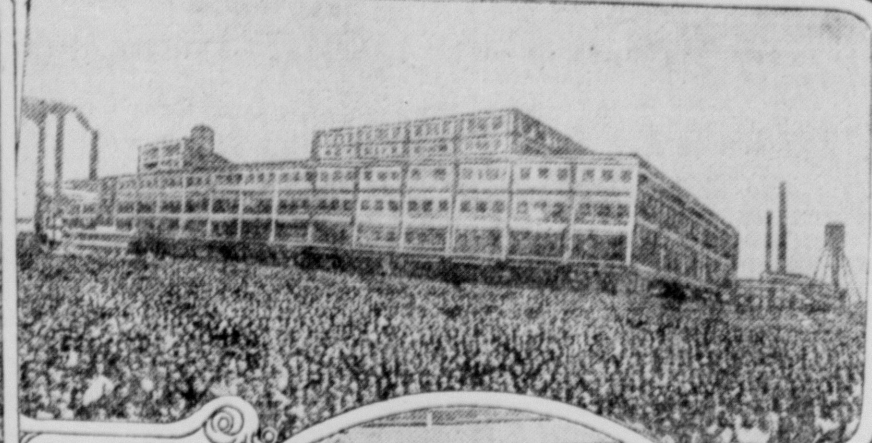

So while the demobilization of the

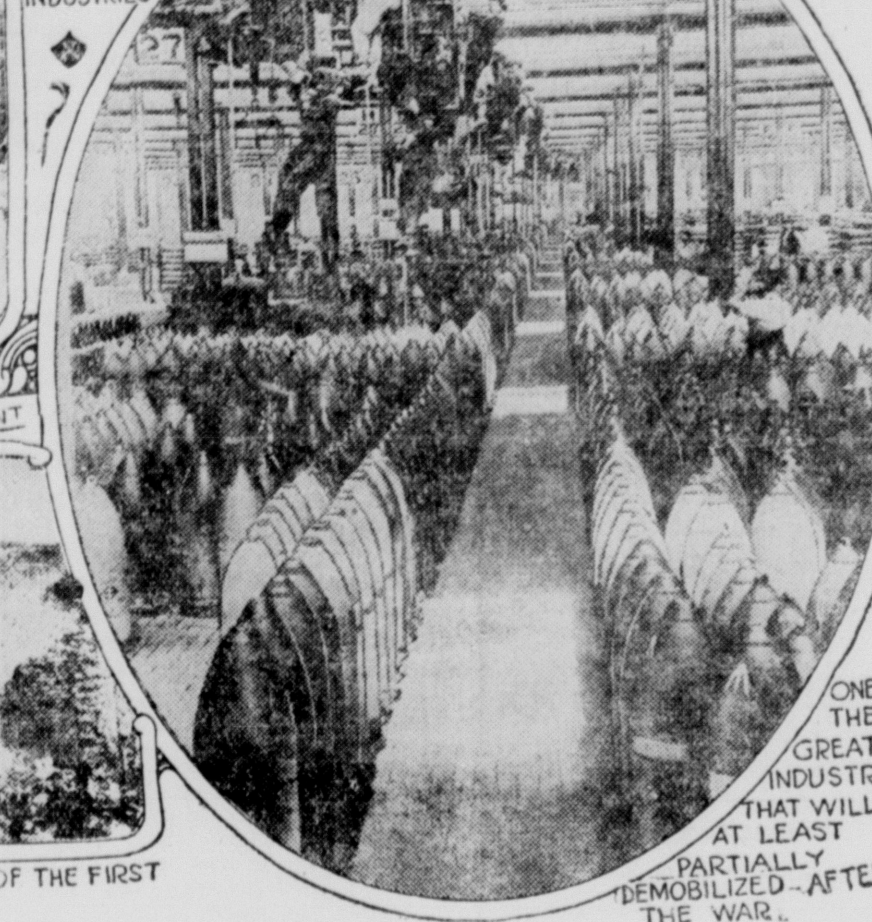

THE WAR HAS MADE NEW YORK'S FINANCIAL DISTRICT THE MONEY CENTRE OF THE WORLD, AND HAS GIVEN AMERICA A DOMINANT POSITION IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE

DEVASTATED YPRES - THE RECONSTRUCTION OF CITIES DESTROYED BY WAR WILL BE ONE OF THE FIRST OF THE TASKS OF PEACE

THE 7000 EMPLOYEES OF ONE OF AMERICA'S BIG INDUSTRIES

ONE OF THE GREAT INDUSTRIES THAT WILL BE AT LEAST PARTIALLY DEMOBILIZED AFTER THE WAR

At this time, when all the nations of the world are giving thought to their commercial, financial and industrial conditions after the war, it behooves the United States also to take stock of the future. Whether peace is one year or five years away, it must come eventually. Business, however, will probably never again conform to pre-war standards. Whether the United States is to be a well integrated part of the newly organized economic body depends almost entirely upon the steps which we now take to prepare for the adjustment of our business to the conditions that will prevail after the war.

To assist in focusing public attention upon the very pressing and immediate need for giving serious thought to our economic future, this newspaper has arranged with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for the publication of a series of authoritative articles on the conditions brought about by the war in this and other countries, and the steps which are being taken to meet them, and to prepare for the future.

equipping the industries of peace. The needs of every European country along these lines must be studied.

But with this period of reorganization successfully passed, the nations affected by the war foresee a new era of prosperity. Countries heavily in debt are planning to reduce their obligations and eventually capture the balance of trade. They are planning intensive cultivation of the soil, enlargement of industry, development of their merchant marine.

While America's rebuilding and demobilization problems will be comparatively light, and she will accordingly have an important advantage over her peers, European nations will also have certain material advantages. One of these will be the impetus given by their colossal national debts, which will spur them to redoubled efforts toward a quick upbuilding of their foreign trade. They will have colonies rich in raw materials, which have developed during the last three years a higher degree of productive efficiency. They will have an intimate acquaintance with the conduct of foreign trade and at least a framework of an organization for perfecting it. They will have a system of foreign banks with staffs of trained men. They will have a degree of governmental assistance and support, hitherto, at least, unknown to American traders.

But America has certain other advantages over them. She has a huge gold reserve on which to build credit, sufficient not only for our own enterprises, but also to give foreign aid. We have a banking system characterized by some of our rival nations as ideal, a system lending itself to the extension of American financial houses abroad. In this a beginning has been made, not only by setting up branch banks and foreign offices, but also by organizing commercial banks.

Then, too, America has a form of government in which her citizens believe. Other nations generally understand that she has no territorial ambitions. Finally, this country is not likely to be cursed with the class struggle.

Economically, her position is solid. With an immense and varied population, she is assured of a richness and variety of productive efforts that, rightly directed, should give her pre-eminence. She has an abundance of untilled farm land, inexhaustible mines, rich forests and ample water supply. Our inventive genius is proverbial. And we shall have at the close of the war a merchant marine such as America or any other nation has never before known.

And yet, while every other great nation is attacking its future preparations under carefully organized governmental direction, we in the United States are lagging behind. There has been so far no organized undertaking of the problem of reconstruction as a whole on the part of the Government. While it may be fairly assumed that such departments as those of the Treasury, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor are devoting much of their time to reconstruction measures, there is as yet no agency for the coordination of their findings and the suggestion of general policies, unless it be Congress itself, a purely political body.

While up to the present time individuals, corporations and associations have done a great deal in the desultory, detached sort of way, no medium for the interchange of opinion or for co-operative effort has been created. This country seems not yet to have sensed the fact that the day of individual efforts and purposes, as distinguished from co-operation and public service, has passed; that the war has established not only the interdependence of nations, but also the interdependence of individuals and classes, and that common understanding, counsel and co-operation are to be the watchwords of the future.

PEOPLE LEARN TRUTH

German Press Publishes Article On American Force.

Papers Admit That Secretary Baker's Figures Are Substantially Correct.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—The German press at last has given up struggling against the truth. In a short notice, which appears in virtually all the papers, the identical nature of which suggests official inspiration, the reluctant admission is made that Secretary Baker's figures regarding the strength of the American forces in France are about correct.

One or two papers add the lame explanation that their foremost figures were based on the position prior to May and that the really big shipments of men from America began since then.

The papers now comfort themselves with the thought that of the 1,300,000 or more Americans, only 400,000 are actually in battle array, with 300,000 behind the front and that the remaining 600,000 is etappen troops. (Engineers, railway men and general workers.)

The Berliner Tagliche Rundschau adds as its own information that no more than 150,000 Americans have up to the present been "noticed" on the West front.

YANKS MAKE LOCAL ATTACK

Gain Results in Vesle Holdings Being More Secure.

With the American Army on the Vesle, Aug. 23.—The Americans made a local attack west of Fismes on the Vesle river between Soissons and Rheims.

The attack rendered the Vesle holdings more secure and also resulted in the cleaning out of a position from which German snipers had been causing the Americans considerable annoyance. The attack was preceded by barrage.

The Germans made a counter attack in an endeavor to offset the American success. The Americans, however, killed a number of the Germans, made 14 prisoners and forced the remainder to flee in disorder.

OFFICER LEADS MUTINY

Russian Garrison at Krasnoye, Selo, Is in Revolt.

War Upon the United States Is Declared by Bolshevik Government.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—According to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, soldiers of the Russian garrison at Krasnoye, Selo, a summer resort 18 miles southeast of Petrograd, have mutinied. The mutineers were led by their own commander, Colonel Maren.

Vice Consul Imbrie Leaves.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The Bolshevik government having declared a state of war to exist between the United States and Russia, Vice Consul Imbrie lowered the American flag on the consulate at Petrograd and turned the archives over to the Norwegian representative, according to State department cablegrams dated Aug. 2.

This is the first specific reference to a "state of war" existing between the United States and the Bolsheviks, the previous report affecting the Allies and the Bolsheviks.

The department assumes, however, that "the state of war declaration" is the same as that recently declared by the Bolsheviks at Moscow, afterward designated as a "state of defense."

Imbrie will remain in Petrograd until he receives instructions from the department. His action, apparently, was taken to protect the records in his possession and to guard against contingencies.

SOLDIERS ARE INTERESTED

Secretary Baker Favors Playing World's Baseball Series.

Washington, Aug. 23.—When asked whether the "work or fight" order would interfere with the world's baseball series this year Secretary Baker said the question had not come before him but indicated his strong opinion that the series would be and should be played.

Since only two teams would take part, the secretary thought the number of men affected by the "work or fight" order would be very small, and, moreover, he added, the soldiers in France are intensely interested in the results.

JEWS MAY ENROLL MONDAY

Objected to Registering on Saturday, Their Sabbath.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Because adherents to the Jewish Orthodox faith object to registering for military service on the Sabbath, Provost Marshal General Crowder announced that youths of that faith will not be required to register next Saturday with others who have become 21 since last June 5. Their registration will be accepted by local boards on Monday, Aug. 26.

President Wilson has authorized an amendment to his original proclamation, under which all persons adhering to religious sects which observe Saturday as the Sabbath may register on the 26th.

DAMAGE DOCKS AT OSTEND

American Naval Airmen Carry Out Successful Raid.

Washington, Aug. 23.—American naval aviators have conducted a successful bombing expedition at night into enemy territory and dropped a large quantity of explosives on the submarine docks at Ostend, Secretary Daniels announced. The report of the raid was transmitted by Vice Admiral Sims.

Chooses C. E. Adams of Omaha for the Coming Year.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 23.—C. E. Adams of Omaha, Neb., was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic for the coming year. The new head of the organization served in the Civil War in the Fifth Wisconsin battery, Fourteenth army corps, under the commands of Gen. George H. Thomas and General Sherman.

Volunteers will be selected from the Red Cross motor corps maintained in several cities.
